

Do you know if your residents are at risk?

Every housing provider faces the same challenge: Understanding where risks lie before they become failures. Prevention begins with asking the right questions early.

The Problems We're Hearing

Rising remediation costs are stalling new builds, with no clear plan to recover wasted spend. Conflicting guidance leaves teams uncertain about which standards to follow, while fragmented data conceals where the real risks lie. Over-reliance on consultants drains budgets before work even begins, and boards face growing safety and reputational risks they cannot yet defend.

The Solution: The Life Guard Framework

Developed with Dame Judith Hackitt, the Life Guard Framework turns chaos into control in six weeks. It helps you pinpoint risks, measure performance, target spending and prove you are in command of safety. All major risks – fire, structural, gas, electrical, asbestos, water hygiene, lifts, damp and mould – united under one clear system.

Proven Results

The City of Edinburgh Council used the Life Guard approach to:

- Save over £20 million.
- Cut six years off their fire safety programme.
- Reduce consultancy and rework costs by combining strategy with delivery.
